Why Choose a Health Care Staffing Services certified firm?

Joint Commission certification:

- Ensures the staffing firm has met Joint Commission human resource standards for all placed clinical staff.
- Demonstrates a staffing firm's commitment to providing quality services as measured against national third-party standards.
- Ensures continuous compliance to standards and performance improvement.
- Increases confidence in the staffing firm.
- Fosters collaboration and accountability.
- Provides better integration between the accredited organization and the certified staffing firm.

What do we hear from our customers?

"As an organization dedicated to ensuring the highest quality of service to our patients, we believe it is critical to rely upon professionals who practice the same standards. Collaborating with staffing firms who hold Joint Commission certification ensures we are being consistent with our efforts to provide excellence and follow the standards set forth by the The Joint Commission, which are both top priorities for the North Shore-LIJ Health System."

North Shore-Long Island Jewish Health System
Great Neck, NY*

We believe that certification by The Joint Commission is one of the mechanisms that helps ensure staffing organizations meet the same standards as an acute health care system. We would strongly encourage all health care organizations to require any temporary staffing organization they use have Joint Commission certification."

Beverly Jones, RN, MPS, CNAA

*Vice President of Patient Care Services
John Muir Medical Center
Walnut Creek, CA*

"We have found that working with a Joint Commission certified staffing firm provides us with peace of mind regarding the quality of professionals we receive from them. We find the screening and credentialing process is thorough, and all required documentation is provided prior to assignment start date. As orientation is shorter and goes smoothly, new personnel are integrated into our work force in a timelier manner."
