The Joint Commission – helping health care organizations help patients

Who we are

Founded in 1951, The Joint Commission seeks to continuously improve health care for the public, in collaboration with other stakeholders, by evaluating health care organizations and inspiring them to excel in providing safe and effective care of the highest quality and value. An independent, not-for-profit organization, The Joint Commission is the nation’s oldest and largest standards-setting and accrediting body in health care. Its vision is that all people always experience the safest, highest quality, best-value health care across all settings.

The Joint Commission realizes its mission through the work its employees do every day to help health care organizations aspire to provide safer, higher quality care. We are committed to providing products and services that are relevant, and to working collaboratively with our fellow employees, health care organizations and other stakeholders. Everything we do, every survey or review we conduct, every interaction with the public, and every standard we set, is done with the aim of helping our customers better serve their patients, residents and clients.

The Joint Commission is governed by a 32-member Board of Commissioners that includes physicians, administrators, nurses, employers, quality experts, a consumer advocate and educators. In addition, home care, behavioral health care, and nursing care center representatives are full voting members of the Board. All of the Board members bring countless years of diverse experience in health care, business and public policy.
In addition, individuals from nationally recognized professional associations, health care organizations, corporations, government agencies, community groups and public members serve on advisory committees that provide guidance and counsel for the evaluation of health care quality and safety. They assist The Joint Commission in identifying what is important when measuring the quality and safety of health care.

Robust Process Improvement®
The Joint Commission strives to be a high reliability organization. In 2008, The Joint Commission began an internal quality initiative known as Robust Process Improvement® (RPI®), which is a set of strategies, tools, methods and training programs for improving business processes. The RPI initiative involves staff at every level. Employees are trained to use RPI tools such as Change Management and Lean Six Sigma, and many have opportunities to become Change Agents, Yellow Belts, Green Belts or Black Belts. The application of RPI has increased the efficiency of Joint Commission business processes, and the quality of our products and services.

Center for Transforming Healthcare
The Joint Commission Center for Transforming Healthcare (CTH) was established in 2008 to solve health care’s most critical safety and quality problems. The Center’s participants – the nation’s leading hospitals and health systems – use a systematic approach to analyze specific breakdowns in care and discover their underlying causes to develop targeted solutions that solve these complex problems. Find out more at www.centerfortransforminghealthcare.org.
What we do
The Joint Commission evaluates and accredits nearly 21,000 health care organizations and programs in the United States, such as organizations that provide ambulatory care, behavioral health care, home care, hospital, laboratory, nursing center care, and office-based surgery services. The Joint Commission also offers certification for disease-specific care programs, primary care medical homes, behavioral health homes, integrated care, perinatal care, palliative care and health care staffing services.

Joint Commission Resources, Inc. (JCR), a not-for-profit wholly-owned affiliate of The Joint Commission, provides innovative solutions designed to help health care organizations improve patient safety and quality.

The Joint Commission and JCR maintain strict separation policies and have established a “firewall” that prohibits The Joint Commission and the consulting services of JCR from sharing any organization-specific, confidential information about accredited organizations or certified programs, as well as certain accreditation process information.

Joint Commission International (JCI) was established in 1994 as a division of JCR. It extends The Joint Commission’s mission worldwide by assisting international health care organizations, public health agencies, health ministries, and others to improve the quality and safety of patient care in more than 100 countries. JCI has regional offices in Asia Pacific and the Middle East.
The Joint Commission believes that people are the most important asset of any business organization, and that each individual expects and deserves to be treated with dignity and respect.

The Joint Commission operates within a safety culture, a work environment that fosters mutual trust and individual accountability by embracing a respectful exchange of ideas and other behaviors that lead to: organizational learning; continuous improvement; and processes, services and products that are consistently excellent. Employees are eligible to participate in the retirement plan on Jan. 1 or July 1 after completing one year of employment, provided they have worked at least 1,000 hours in that year and were at least age 21. Contributions made after one year of service are matched 50¢ for each $1 contributed up to 6 percent of pay. A maximum of 50 percent of pay may be contributed by an employee, not to exceed $18,000 per year. An additional $6,000 “catch-up” contribution can be elected by participants age 50 and over.

403(b) tax-sheltered annuity program
The Joint Commission has made provisions to allow all employees to voluntarily establish a tax-sheltered annuity through a 403(b) Retirement Savings Program. This optional retirement program allows an employee to defer up to 50 percent of salary to a maximum of $18,000.
